He is a great person and a great manager. He balances the professional and personal relationships very well.

I have been very pleased with the management style he delivers.

He has always conducted himself in a very professional manner at work and has my full respect for his decisions and actions.

I feel he could improve by being personally accountable for his team more often.

I have heard many positive comments from his team. Personally, I enjoy my job more because of the team I work with.

He has high expectations that I sometimes am unable to meet. He considers if they were met or not, but never the reason.

He sets a great example by being organized, on-time and is a great listener.

He does a great job monitoring the team and providing direction, but I would like to see more one on one development.

He is professional, business oriented and organized, yet very friendly and supportive. I see him as a true leader.
